DETAILED ACTION

1. Claims 1-30 are pending in this application.
2. The claims and only the claims form the metes and bounds of the invention. The Examiner has full latitude to interpret each claim in the broadest reasonable sense. Examiner will reference prior art using terminology familiar to one of ordinary skill in the art. Such an approach is broad in concept and can be either explicit or implicit in meaning.

Drawings

3. The drawings are objected to because of the following:
Fig. 3: To make the figure legible, remove the shading.
Fig. 3: Item numbers 22, 24 and 26 reference the same element.
These objections must be corrected.

Specification

4. Page 3, lines 21-22: All figures are to be individually listed with a brief description of the related substantive matter contained thereon.

Page 7, line 27: remove the first "a required".

These objections must be corrected.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

5. The following is a quotation of the first paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall contain a written description of the invention, and of the manner and process of making and using it, in such full, clear, concise, and exact terms as to enable any person skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and use the same and shall set forth the best mode contemplated by the inventor of carrying out his invention.

6. Claims 1, 3-13, 16, and 18-28, are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, as failing to comply with the enablement requirement. The claim(s) contains subject matter which was not described in the specification in such a way as to enable one skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and/or use the invention. The specification does not address "enforced sequence of tasks."

7. Claims 4, 10, 19, and 25 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, as failing to comply with the enablement requirement. The claim(s) contains subject matter which was not described in the specification in such a way as to enable one skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and/or use the invention. The specification does not address "required leaf tasks."

8. Claims 5, 11, 20, and 26 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, as failing to comply with the enablement requirement. The claim(s) contains subject matter which was not described in the specification in such a way as to enable one skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and/or use the invention. The specification does not address "non-required, leaf tasks."

10. Claims 6, 12, 21, and 27 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, as failing to comply with the enablement requirement. The claim(s) contains subject matter which was not described in the specification in such a way as to enable one skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and/or use the invention. The specification does not address "complete, non-leaf tasks."

11. Claims 7, 13, 22, and 28 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, as failing to comply with the enablement requirement. The claim(s) contains subject matter which was not described in the specification in such a way as to enable one skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and/or use the invention. The specification does not address "incomplete, non-leaf tasks."

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 101

12. 35 U.S.C. 101 reads as follows:

Whoever invents or discovers any new and useful process, machine, manufacture, or composition of matter, or any new and useful improvement thereof, may obtain a patent therefor, subject to the conditions and requirements of this title.

13. Claims 1-28 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 101 because the claimed invention lacks patentable utility. The practical application test requires that a useful, concrete and tangible result be accomplished. Claims 1-28 represent abstract methodology and therefore are intangible. The consequence is that utility is lacking.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

14. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

15. Claims 1-30 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Lannert et al (U. S. 6,029,156, referred to as Lannert).

Claims 1, 14, 29

Lannert anticipates providing simulation software code (Lannert, col 11, lines 13-20); providing a dynamic data model comprising tasks and statements (Lannert, col 10, lines 60-67; col 11, lines 1-12); receiving a statement made by the learner (Lannert, col 11, lines 13-20); and generating a list of possible statements in response to the received statement for the learner to make from the statements contained within the dynamic data model based on at least one of: a. whether the current conversation has an enforced sequence of tasks, b. whether the current task allows the learner to move to a sibling task, c. whether the current conversation requires completion; d. whether the current task is a leaf task, e. whether the current task is a required task, or f. whether the task is complete (Lannert, col 11, lines 23-36; Examiner's Note (EN): Applies to each consideration).

Claims 2, 17

Lannert anticipates the dynamic data model is independent from the simulation software code (Lannert, Fig. 2).

Claims 3-13, 16, 18-28

EN: These claims all contain various terminology identified above that maybe unique to this application but has not been enabled in the specification and virtually makes it impossible to realistically establish the metes and bounds of such claims. However, in the spirit of expeditious prosecution, the Examiner has reviewed each claim and the following points in summary are appropriate:

- a. Lannert and Fig. 57 of Lannert apply to each of these claims.
- b. Lannert and Fig. 57 has transition conditions, candidate statements, current tasks, conversation, ancestors, enforced sequence of tasks, siblings, leaf tasks, required and incomplete considerations.
- c. Para 2 above applies. Among other interpretations, the Examiner has established the following perspective: Statements are options; conversation is subject matter; enforced sequence of tasks is protocol, algorithms, process etc.; sibling is same level; ancestor is level above; child is the level below; leaf task is nothing follows; required sets forth the next or following step; incomplete is in process. As an example, in the case of Claim 3, Lannert anticipates candidate statements of the current task when the conversation has an enforced sequence of tasks and the task allows the learner to move to a sibling task (Lannert, Fig 57; EN: candidate statements (Finance or Present Business Case); current task (Present Business Case); conversation (of a business nature); enforced sequence of tasks (001 – Intro – What is BDM – 000 BDM Child 1 – BDM Child 1); and siblings to move to (Target Pages- Target Groups).

Art Unit: 2121

Claims 15, 30

Lannert anticipates the step of determining whether the received statement completes a current task (Lannert, col 11, lines 23-36; EN: The purpose of Lannert' teachings is Goal Based Tutoring which would in consequence mean that at a time t, the received statement from the student would complete a current task. There would be nothing novel about such an effort.)

Conclusion

16. Claims 1-30 are rejected.
